'Monstrous' Charge

LONDON — When Laborite Robert Edwards rose in the House of Commons to charge that U.S. Central Intelligence "agents" are "killing people in British Guiana," Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys retorted: "That is a monstrous suggestion."

In the colony, where blood of both Negroes and East Indians is being spilled increasingly, Gov. Richard Luyt issued an ultimatum for the surrender of all illegal arms and said he was "appalled at the degradation of those responsible" for the racial strife.
